Fighting to Save the Old Chelsea Post Office

For the last several weeks, I have worked with Chelsea community members and local elected officials to push the United States Postal Service (USPS) to reconsider its stated intention to close the Old Chelsea Post Office, at 217 W 18th St. Its proposal to sell the property came suddenly, without proper notice, and without sufficient community input. At our urging, USPS held a public meeting at the Fulton Center Auditorium on April 11th to present its plans and field questions from Chelsea residents.

The precipitous announcement of the closing has understandably been a major cause for concern in the neighborhood. Chelsea residents depend on a convenient and well-equipped central post office for their day-to-day needs. After repeated requests from myself and local officials, USPS extended its period of public comment on its proposal, but only to April 26th, allowing community members just 15 days to comment following the April 11th presentation. If you would like to do so, you may submit comments in writing to: Joseph J. Mulvey, Vice President of Facilities Implementation, U.S. Postal Service, 2 Congress Street, Room 8, Milford, MA, 01757-9998.

Serving Brooklyn's Senior Citizens

Rep. Nadler helped secure funding for the Jewish Community Council of Greater Coney Island for two wheelchair-accessible buses for seniors in southern Brooklyn.

Last month, I was honored to receive recognition from the Jewish Community Council of Greater Coney Island (JCCGCI) for my work on behalf of the communities of southern Brooklyn for the past 20 years as their representative in Congress. JCCGCI does important work for the people of Brooklyn, and I am pleased to have helped them obtain federal funds to purchase two wheelchair-accessible buses for the transport of senior citizens. These two 16-passenger buses serve seniors in Coney Island, Sea Gate, Brighton Beach, Midwood, and other parts of Brooklyn and, after the devastation of Hurricane Sandy, have been used to transport hundreds of seniors to obtain food and supplies that are desperately needed.
